Daniel Eliot is the chief communications strategist MITRE’s National Cybersecurity Federally Funded Research and Development Center (FFRDC), primarily providing support to the NIST National Cybersecurity Center of Excellence. Prior to that, he was the director of education and strategic initiatives at the National Cybersecurity Alliance.

You can follow Daniel Eliot on Twitter @danielleliot

“Don’t Take the Bait: Avoiding Romance and Employment Scams”

Abstract: Cyber criminals are always on the lookout to prey on people when they are at their most vulnerable. Two of common situations are when people are looking for employment and companionship. This talk will cover common employment and romance scam tactics and best practices for avoiding them. The session will also provide an introduction to the National Cybersecurity Center of Excellence and its role in providing standards-based cybersecurity guidance.